It will build skills using buprenorphine in the emergency department, hospital and ambulatory settings and managing challenging inductions from fentanyl. An updated comparison on the buprenorphine formulations and clinical use will be provided. MORE is an evidence-based, transdiagnostic therapy that unites complementary aspects of mindfulness training, third-wave cognitive behavioral therapy, and principles from positive psychology. MORE's therapeutic effects have been demonstrated in five randomized controlled trials, and the MORE research program is currently supported by more than $25 million in federal research grants from the National Institutes of Health and the U.S. Department of Defense.

Dr. Linda Shiue, an internist and professionally trained chef will demonstrate easy effective recipes. In addition, you will learn about resources like teaching kitchens to empower your patients on their road to a successful recovery.

When an evaluation of a health care professional is required, who does it and what does it include? Learn from the attorneys who represent physicians, from hospital medical staff wellbeing committees and MECs, and from those who specialize in physician fitness for duty evaluations and standards for associated reports. If you order evaluations of health care professionals, conduct evaluations, and submit reports, interpret and use the report, or are an attorney who represents any of those persons/agencies, this workshop is for you.
